

Great Leader Gone

France Mourns DeGaulle

By MORRIS ROSENBERG
PARIS (AP) — Charles de Gaulle is dead in his 80th year. The 6-foot-general who led France back from the ashes of World War II defeat and then saved it again from the chaos of 1958, succumbed Monday night to a ruptured aneurism, a circulatory ailment. His death did not become known until today, and France plunged into mourning.

Far removed from the military and political battles that immortalized him, De Gaulle died at his country home in Colombey-les-deux-eglises, where the funeral will be held Thursday with a minimum of pomp in keeping with his wish. No official government representative will be present, but at the same time France will have a day of national mourning with simultaneous services in Notre Dame Cathedral and all the nation's churches. All the church bells, in France's magnificent cathedrals and in tiny chapels, will peal out their message.

A little before 7 p.m. De Gaulle stepped out of his office in his country retreat, put both hands below his waist, and told his wife Yvonne, "Oh, how it hurts."

He slipped to the floor, and a servant immediately called the doctor and the Rev. Claude Jaugey, the village priest. Father Jaugey said that when he arrived he was hurried to the second-floor room where he saw De Gaulle stretched out on the floor, fully dressed in a dark suit.

Father Jaugey said De Gaulle was not dead, but seemed to be unconscious.

"He was suffering terribly," the priest said. An earlier account reaching Paris had said De Gaulle was seated in an armchair waiting for the evening television newscast when he died.

The priest said that when he left the De Gaulle home the former president was dead. Father Jaugey was asked to promise to remain silent.

The nation's tribute to its longtime leader will be in accordance with his wishes.

"I do not wish a national funeral," he said in a document dated 1952. "No president, no ministers, no parliamentary committees, no representatives of government organs. Only the French military service may take part officially. . . . No speech will be pronounced."

At Key Biscayne, Fla., the Florida White House announced the President Nixon will fly to Paris Thursday to attend a state memorial service for De Gaulle in the Cathedral of Notre Dame.

De Gaulle escaped assassination attempts three times, and for many it was hard to believe that he had died peacefully.

Colombey-les-deux-Eglises-Colombey of the two churches — is 16 miles east of Paris. President Georges Pompidou will go there Wednesday.

At his death De Gaulle was just 13 days short of his 80th birthday. He was born in Lille Nov. 22, 1890.

He had left for that country in April after graduating from Hunter Air Force Base, Savannah, Ga., as a helicopter pilot.

A well-known football and basketball player at Los Molinos High School, he studied briefly at Shasta College and worked one summer with Diamond National in Chico before volunteering for the Army Flight Program in March, 1969.

Surviving him in addition to his parents are a sister, Irene Eggert; a brother, Jerry; a niece, Deborah and grandmother, Mrs. Ulva Hudson, all of Los Molinos.

Bereaved aunts include: Mrs. Phillis Shore, Sacramento, Mrs. Claire Coberly, Chico, Mrs. Bertha Russell, Mrs. Gertrude Boothby, Saco, Maine, Mrs. Ina Rouse, Seat Pleasant, Maryland and Mrs. Hazel Arno, Hudson, Mass.

Funeral arrangements are pending, but the family requests that remembrances be made to the Talbot King Scholarship Fund in place of floral tributes.

Rezoning Petition At Corning Council Meet

By TIMELLEDEGE
A petition carrying some 80 signatures asking that a parcel of land within the city limits of Corning be rezoned to permit mobile homes on private land was presented to the Corning City Council last night at its regular meeting.

Attorney Elmer Jennings offered the petition to the council, explaining that the signatures include most of the property owners in the vicinity of a vacant lot on which his client wants to place a mobile home.

He told the council his client will petition all home-owners in and surrounding a parcel of land bordered on the north by Grant, on the south by Taft, the west by Toomes, and the east by Houghton Streets if the council indicates they will rezone that parcel with the approval of those homeowners.

Councilman M.G. Emery objected. He charged that petitions are often misleading and said he heard several people are "really unhappy" about the rezoning plan. He suggested that because the rezoning would initially benefit only one family, he didn't consider it to be "in the public interest."

Emery, owner of a mobile home park under construction in Corning, said County planning consultant James Campbell has recommended that mobile homes be permitted in a mobile home park only. He suggested the council follow that advice.

Councilman Weeks, however, pointed out Campbell has recently recommended to the city of Redding it rezone a parcel of land in a residential area to permit mobile homes.

Mayor Joseph Babb said he might support the proposal if all concerned homeowners signed the petition, but suggested the council refer it to the planning commission with no initial recommendation. He said the city should consider a more equitable form of taxation because he said, mobile home owners presently pay less in taxes than do owners of structural homes.

News Of World In Brief

ARMS TALK CONFLICT

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet negotiators held a third meeting here today in their strategic arms limitation talks amid increasing signs of dissatisfaction among U.S. allies with the expected eventual outcome.

It was marked by the same serious approach toward tackling the intricate problems of limiting the nuclear missile race, without any extraneous issues or questions being raised, a conference source said.

But whether the two super-powers have as yet made any real headway toward halting their weapons competition remained unknown.

GM TALKS RESUME

DETROIT (AP) — Bargainers for the United Auto Workers and General Motors Corp. resumed contract talks today after a 17-hour negotiating session failed to produce a settlement of an eight-week-old strike.

The negotiators had met from 9 a.m. Monday until 2:10 a.m. today, breaking only for meals. They returned to the bargaining suite at the GM midtown Detroit headquarters later in the morning.

HEAVIEST V.C. ATTACKS

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The heaviest North Vietnamese-Viet Cong attacks in two months threw the Cambodian government's northern front into disarray today and cut it off from Phnom Penh.

Two towns, an airport and two bridges were hit. Thousands of reinforcements trying to reach the battle zone were reported blocked by destruction of a large bridge during the night.

ARAB PLANE HIJACKED

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — A Saudi Arabian airliner with 14 persons aboard was hijacked today from Amman to Damascus, Syria, the director of Amman Airport announced.

He said the twin-engine DC3 took off from Amman on a flight to the Saudi capital of Riyadh but was pirated on the way and forced to fly to the Syrian capital.

The director, Mohammed Jumaa, said the plane carried 10 passengers and four crew members. The passengers included six Jordanians and four Saudi Arabians.

PETITION DENIED

SACRAMENTO (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge Philip Wilkins has denied a petition by Indians seeking to block the transfer of 640 federally-owned acres near Davis to the University of California at Davis.

U.S. Generals Freed By Russian Captors

By NICK LUDINGTON
Associated Press Writer
ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Two U.S. Army generals and a Turkish colonel returned to Turkey from Soviet Armenia today, three weeks after their light plane landed 12 miles across the border and they were interned.

The Turkish Foreign Ministry said the men were "healthy and in good shape."

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the generals' U.S. Army pilot also was released and would fly back their six-seat, twin-engine plane as soon as weather permitted.

A Foreign Ministry source said Turkish and Soviet generals and civilian officials negotiated at the border town of Kizilcak for nine hours, presumably working out details of the release.

The officers were freed at 7 a.m. and were driven to Kars, 40 miles southwest of the Soviet frontier, to take a Turkish military plane to Ankara.

Kizilcak is halfway between Kars and Leninakan, in Soviet Armenia.

Group Formed In Corning Promote New Businesses

A committee of nine Corning business and professional men have been named to direct a Community Development Corporation in an effort to bring new business to the city.

The corporation will make some funds available to new or expanding businesses as incentive to the U.S. Office of Economic Development to make federal loans available.

OED has indicated it is more likely to authorize business or industrial loans if communities evidence their support for the new or expanding businesses. Corning's Community Development Corporation is an indication of that support.

The group meets tonight in Corning to develop plans.

Attorney Elmer Jennings is providing legal counsel for the corporation.

The group includes Mayor Joseph Babb, Ray Crane, Malcolm Hall, Dan Hicken, A. R. Kirkpatrick, A. K. Miller, F. J. Mills, Don O'Dell and William Smiley.

Elmore Pharmacy Says Gum Five Cents

A Daily News reporter writing about the price of Wrigley's chewing gum in Red Bluff included Elmore's Pharmacy among stores charging seven cents, based on a purchase there. However, an error apparently was made in their charging that.

Nixon Sees Less Criticism

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon believes the psychological impact of the 1970 elections will render the position of his Senate critics more difficult.

He foresees criticism of his foreign policy declining in volume and easing in tone, partly because of the election defeat of two vehement critics, partly because he says the end is in sight in the South Vietnam war.

Nixon said he now enjoys a close but fairly decisive Senate margin on foreign and defense issues, and other senators may therefore be reluctant to appear obstructionist.

He said it will be harder to oppose him in the new Senate. Nixon gave that analysis last Thursday in a 90-minute interview with nine Washington columnists.

They were not permitted to quote him directly in accounts of that conversation, published Monday.

The President told them he believes the psychological impact of the defeats of Sens. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., Albert Gore, D-Tenn., and Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., will have an effect on members of the Senate.

Goodell was defeated by a conservative who had White House support; Gore and Tydings were ousted by Republican challengers.

Goodell and Gore have been among the more vehement critics of Nixon policy in Southeast Asia.

In suggesting that their defeats would not be forgotten by the men they leave behind, Nixon mentioned Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill.

The bureau is recognized for the vital part it has played in rural life for half a century. Each year the bureau sponsors a tractor training program, sends young people to a safety seminar and presents Fat Stock trophies at the Tehama Totem Fair. November 18, the Kiwanis and other clubs will join the bureau to celebrate Farm-City week at a dinner where farmers and businessmen will be honored.

American Legion To Mark Veterans Day

The American Legion will sponsor a potluck dinner tomorrow evening at the Veterans Memorial Hall in observance of Veterans Day. Tehama County Superior Court Judge Curtis E. Wetter will be the featured speaker at the annual event. The dinner starts at 7 p.m.

Red Bluff Mayor Andrew Osborne has officially proclaimed Wednesday as Veterans Day, and has called on all citizens to observe the day with appropriate ceremonies in honoring those who have borne the burden in defense of freedom. Legion Commander Harold Pascoe has also made a similar request.

The Daily News will publish as usual, and most stores will remain open.

Banks, libraries, the Post office and city and state offices will be closed for the observance.

Wants To 'Defabricate' Story

NEW YORK (AP) — A New Jersey woman who a new book claims is really aviatrix Amelia Earhart, believed dead in a Pacific plane crash in 1937, says she wants to "defabricate" the story.

The book, by former Air Force Lt. Col. Joe Klaas, contends that the woman calling herself Mrs. Guy Bolam, the former Irene Craigmile, is the famed flier, keeping her identity secret because of wartime espionage missions that could be "embarrassing" to this country.

Klaas and Maj. Joseph Gervais, a professional investigator of aircraft accidents, say their studies led them to believe that Miss Earhart was captured by the Japanese in 1937. They said it was during a secret mission to photograph Japan's naval buildup.

Prison Sentences For Two County Men

Two men were sentenced to state prison yesterday in Tehama County Superior Court during law and motion proceedings.

Patrick Allen Gessel, 21, Corning was ordered to prison after he had earlier been convicted by a jury for attempted burglary. He had pleaded not guilty to a charge of attempting to enter the West Street School in Corning on the evening of Sept. 29.

Gessel was represented during yesterday's proceedings by attorney Ed Allen.

Jimmie Dale Bouldin, a former Corning resident, was ordered back to prison after his probation was revoked.

Bouldin had originally been granted four years probation in September of 1966, following his conviction of burglarizing the G. G. Morgan and Sons clothing store in Corning. In April of this year he was convicted of two counts of burglary, in Kings County and was committed to the department of corrections for placement at the California Rehabilitation Center for drug (Continued on Page 8)

Impressions Of South Pacific Cruise

By ELLA HENDRICKS

Different from Europeans, the South Pacific islanders do not have as much recorded history with ancient castles and monuments, but the traditions of their ancestors are in evidence everywhere. This was one of the observances made by Miss Grace Minch, who has returned to Red Bluff following a South Pacific cruise.

Natives throughout the islands, visited on the tour, cling to their tribal costumes, dances and other characteristics of two centuries ago and despite the jet age and modern way of life elsewhere, the islands' magic charm and relaxed atmosphere still persists, is the opinion of Miss Minch.

Miss Minch and Mrs. Ethleen Irish Hall of Redding were members of a South Pacific cruise of 44 days, sponsored by the combined National Retired Teachers' Association and the American Association of Retired Persons. Their group of 15, with director, boarded the S. S. Mariposa in San Francisco which was their home for the entire tour. There were 100 passengers on the boat leaving the bay city, joined by others en route.

Their first stop was at Los Angeles, followed by a lengthy voyage to the island of Bora Bora, claimed to be little changed despite the tourist invasion.

Tours were made of the various islands, supplemented with Polynesian entertainment. The visit at Tahiti revealed spectacular scenery, thatched villages, jungles and fringed beaches. The Mariposa did not dock at the town of Rorotonga in the Cooks Island group, but the natives met the ship to stage an entertainment in form of a farewell to the Matson Line passenger boats which have been sold to another company. The emblem "M" fronting each ship, is to be replaced with a "Golden Bear," according to Miss Minch.

Miss Minch and Mrs. Hall were disappointed in having their visit in New Zealand shortened but they did have a few days in Australia. One day was spent on a Jolly Swagman tour into the bush country.

The local women witnessed an hour and a half long parade on the street in Sydney, commemorating the early history and development of Australia. There were numerous bands, featuring bagpipes, police citizens, Boys and Girls Clubs and Brigades, all in uniform, and hundreds of vintage cars with right hand drive. Instead of flowers, the floats were covered with bows of colorful ribbon. Children in elementary schools in Australia, mostly private, wear uniforms and sun hats, Miss Minch observed.

The visitors found Suva, capital city of Fiji Islands, interesting. They were entertained by the band of the military forces in native costume (black coats and white skirts).

Friendliness and hospitality of both the Tahitians and Fijians contribute greatly to the islands' captivating flavor, according to Miss Minch. Leaving the Fiji Island group, the next stop was Samoa, which the visitors found more primitive. From there they continued to Hawaii.

Life aboard ship consisted of every type of recreation, as well as many cultural activities. Miss Minch joined a class in flower arranging, using fresh flowers, fruits and dried materials of the tropics, in modern, traditional and oriental designs. There were classes in all kinds of crafts conducted by professionals.

At every port of call, passengers leaving or boarding the boat were the incentive for a special celebration, featuring a banquet. Miss Minch explained "Baked Alaska" with hot blueberry sauce, or "Cherry Jubilee" were among popular dishes on the menu.

Although she found the entire cruise enjoyable, meeting many interesting persons and with ample time to relax, Miss Minch was happy to see her sister-in-law, Mrs. Evelyn Minch and daughter, Mrs. Lizanne Smith, who met the travelers at the dock in San Francisco.

Teen-age Mail

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

I am a 16-year-old girl and I am writing about a personal matter between me and my boy friend. I would like to know if I am right or wrong in the way I feel. I have always read your column and I hope you can help me as you have so many others. The problem is, I want to get married. My boy friend and I asked my parents for their permission, and they said the only way I could get married is if I got pregnant or when I am 21.

I couldn't wait that long so my boy friend and I decided I should become pregnant and I did. When I told my parents they were shocked and said I must have an abortion. Also, they said they are going to take my boy friend to court. I wanted to be a virgin until the day I married, but they influenced me in getting pregnant. Do you think they are treating me right? Please publish my letter in our newspaper so my parents will see it.

H.F.M.

Dear H.F.M.:

As you have probably found out, the situation you describe is not just a "personal matter between you and your boy friend." This sort of thing will encompass you and your boy friend, both sets of parents and the fate of your unborn child.

You didn't mention your boy friend's age but whatever it is, it is true that your parents can take him to court. In fact, if they are so inclined, they can have him put in prison — even if you were a willing partner — because you are a minor.

Your parents were right to refuse to let you get married because obviously you are very immature for your age. But, in my opinion, they worded their refusal wrong. However, you cannot blame them for the trouble you are in because you are old enough to know better, and I am sure you will regret your childish, "I can't wait" approach to the whole tragic situation. You have cooked up a lot of unnecessary heartaches and problems for yourself but now that it has been done, I hope you parents will give you the best possible help and advice.

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

I am a 15-year-old boy. I have noticed that a lot of girls write you who seem to have the idea that ALL boys want to take advantage of them. Mrs. Ricker, that is not true, and girls shouldn't judge all boys by a few. There are some boys left who respect a girl who says, "No". I would like to encourage and commend all the girls who say "No," and mean it, instead of letting a boy go too far. If a girl behaves well, usually a boy will respect her. If he doesn't, then he isn't worth dating in the first place. Anyhow, please publish my letter. Perhaps the girls will be relieved to know there are still a few of us left.

MATT

Dear Matt:

Although I have told my girl readers many times that some boys respect nice girls, I believe it will impress them more to read a letter from a boy saying, in effect, the same thing. I receive many letters similar to yours, Matt, so I know you are right.

While we're on the subject, I also receive letters from boys criticizing girls for being much too aggressive. So, perhaps, if some of the girls would behave better, they wouldn't have so much trouble with boys.

YOU AND THE OPPOSITE SEX

Teen-agers find the opposite sex intriguing, mysterious, baffling and often downright aggravating. If this is your kind of problem, send for Dorothy Ricker's free leaflet, "You And The Opposite Sex." Please enclose a STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE with your request for the leaflet. Mail to Dorothy Ricker in care of this newspaper.

Local Scout Leaders Attend Annual Meet

The College of the Redwoods in Eureka was the setting for the annual Sierra-Cascade Girl Scout Council meeting last weekend. This is the first time Eureka has hosted the nine-county annual meeting, usually held in Redding or Chico.

Traveling from Red Bluff were many of the local Girl Scout personnel. Official delegates included Mrs. Walter Calef, service unit chairman, Mrs. Don Owens and alternates, Mrs. Linton Brown and Mrs. Harry Davis. Brownie Troop leaders attending were Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. Larry Franceschi, Mrs. John Cessna, and Mrs. James Hatfield, the latter of Gerber. Junior Troops were represented by Mrs. John Hayes, and Senior Scouts by the Misses Lois and Laurie Calef.

The Friday evening program opened with a seafood smorgasbord, followed by camp movies, folk dancing and singing time. Workshops offered on Saturday morning included camping, membership, international opportunities in scouting, neighborhood involvement, action 70 and finances. Featured speaker at the luncheon was Mrs. Luada Sandler, membership advisor on the National Girl Scout staff.

At the business session a significant bylaw change added Senior Scout representation to the Board of Directors for the Council. Made up of volunteer members from all geographical divisions of the council, the Board sets policy and standards for all Girls Scouts within its area.

Good Cause For Refusing Referral

A union carpenter had always worked in the vicinity of his home town, where he owned his home and supported his wife, 3 children and elderly mother. He was unemployed about 3 weeks and drawing benefits when the public employment office offered him a job as a union carpenter on a big construction project about 500 miles away. He refused the referral.

The law states that if without good cause a claimant refuses suitable employment, he may be disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance.

"Suitable employment" means work in the individual's usual occupation or work for which he is reasonably fitted. This takes into consideration his experience, prior earnings, prospects for securing local work and the distance of the work from where he lives.

Some individuals in the construction trades travel long distances to accept employment; but this is not necessarily true of all building trades workers. It did not apply to him. He had a permanent home, a family and had a history of local employment. Further, a check with the union showed he had good prospects of local employment.

Such a referral would not be proper, although in all other respects suitable.

It was held that he was entitled to benefits. He had good cause for refusing the referral.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am 23, have been married two years and was a virgin until six months ago. Someone other than my husband consummated the marriage.

When Cal and I were going together he spoke with great reverence about my virginity. He kept saying our wedding night would be everything a wedding night ought to be. But when that night finally came we were both exhausted from the ceremony and reception and the 100-mile drive. Nothing happened. The following day Cal got himself a terrific case of sunburn. He couldn't put on a shirt for two weeks. When his sunburn healed he suddenly decided to have a knee operation on an old football injury.

After 18 months of excuses (and getting kissed goodnight on the forehead) I was convinced that I must be the most undesirable woman in the world. It was then that an attractive man at work rescued me from a nervous breakdown by suggesting that we have an affair. I accepted immediately.

Your column a few weeks ago, quoting the Ohio psychology professor (he said the importance of sex in marriage was greatly exaggerated) really did it. Cal showed me the column and crowed, "See—here's what I mean!" Your answer was a gem, Ann. You said you weren't going to comment until you heard from the professor's wife. I then told Cal maybe HE could live without sex but I couldn't. When he asked how I had managed so far, I admitted I had taken a lover, hoping he would view it as a challenge. His reaction was shocking. He said, "It's O.K. with me. Let's leave things as they are."

I am hurt and fed up and I refuse to live like this. I am not interested in marrying my lover but I definitely want out of this weird marriage. What is your advice?

—RENEE
Dear Renee: Try to get Cal to go with you for counseling. If he refuses, see a lawyer. You might be eligible for an annulment. I see no reason for a 23-year-old girl to settle for a brother-sister marriage with cheating privileges.

Jury Returns Two Guilty Verdicts

A jury of six men and six women have returned two guilty verdicts against Pascual Salgado, a 29-year-old Corning man.

Salgado had been charged with burglarizing a storage shed at the Trading Post, 99 South, Red Bluff. A saddle belonging to William Tutt was taken. He was also charged with receiving a stolen portable television set belonging to Virginia R. Hitchcock of Gerber. Salgado had pleaded not guilty to both charges.

An accomplice, Thomas Rivera, was convicted by jury in September of two counts of burglary, and was sentenced to state prison for a term prescribed by law.

The jury deliberated most of Friday afternoon, concluding a three-day trial, before returning the verdict against Salgado.

His case has been referred to the probation department for a report and recommendations. Sentencing has been set for Nov. 23, at 1:45 p.m.

Superior Court Jury Rules In Favor Of Cecil E. Langberg

A superior court jury has ruled in favor of Cecil E. Langberg in a personal injuries suit in which it was contended he was injured in an automobile accident involving Clair D. Pitkin, also of Red Bluff.

The jury awarded Langberg $4,500 for injuries. The accident occurred Jan. 32, on Eby Road, near Red Bluff.

Herman Meyer, of J. Adrian Palmquist attorney firm from Alameda, represented Langberg. Pitkin was represented by A. John Merlo of Chico.

The jury trial lasted three days.

How Much Protection

Members of the National Federation of Independent Business recently took a poll among its members on a proposed federal law that would require manufacturers of consumer goods to submit any warranties or guarantees they make to the Federal Trade Commission for approval. Surprising a lot of people, the federation members voted against the measure 53 to 40 per cent, with seven per cent undecided.

The reason that a lot of people were surprised is that retailers are often caught in the middle when there is a misunderstanding over what a warranty actually means. However, it seems likely, the independent businessmen were opposed to federal government screening because they were convinced that more work for the Federal Trade Commission would mean more federal employees and higher taxes. There seems little doubt they are right in that.

The purpose of the proposed law is laudable. It is based on the undoubted fact that a lot of buyers are confused about what the warranties or guarantees covering their purchases mean, and many times believe that they have more protection against product failure than they actually have. But there is question about how much the public should be taxed to protect those who are misled by the fine print. Perhaps the retailers were right in withholding approval of the proposed law.

Deliberate misrepresentation and outright fraud, of course, should be dealt with firmly and severely. But passing on every warranty and guarantee before there is any indication of anything wrong is a much bigger job than prosecuting anyone making misleading statements. Conscientiously carried out, it would afford consumers better protection than they have now.

But, in the final analysis, nothing can take the place of careful, enlightened self-interest on the part of the consumer. Perhaps, then, our efforts should be pressed in the direction of consumer education. If sellers with clearly understood warranties get the bulk of the business, warranties will improve without government supervision.

With Relief, Or As Lament

"It's over, all over . . ." went the old song about unrequited love; but Californians can pick up the refrain these post-election days. Some with happy relief, some as a lament for unrequited political amour.

Elections have been likened to hitting your head against the wall. It feels so good when you quit. But unless we are going to drift into some frighteningly threatening changes in our society, elections are one of our great hopes and responsibilities.

Through them we can help stem the forces that threaten us. Through them we can help make the changes that need to be made in our way of living together. If we will. If we will use them, that is, as the tools they are meant to be. Tools to bring into positions of trust and great responsibility the leadership we must have. Tools to direct the course of our nation's growth along the lines laid out in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.

Lush Deal For Constituent

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Rep. Dan Flood's legendary waxed moustache quivers with outrage when he catches officials wasting money at the Health, Education, and Welfare Department, whose budget Flood handles in Congress.

But when his own Pennsylvania coal-region constituents are looking for HEW contracts, the energetic chairman of the House HEW appropriations subcommittee loosens both his penny-pinching principles and the federal purse strings.

Recently, Flood and his staff intervened boldly in favor of a controversial HEW contract that left Office of Education officials furious and brought a thunderous complaint from a panel of educational scientists.

In Flood's home town of Wilkes-Barre, a young company called InTech Corporation, headed by an attractive friend of Flood, Patricia Brislin, was hungry for federal contracts.

So Flood's administrative assistant at the time, Eugene Hegarty, set up a rush interview for Mrs. Brislin with an Office of Education official, David Bushnell. Mrs. Brislin presented an idea for training textile weavers, then asked bluntly, "Is there any chance the federal government would put in some money?"

Bushnell, noting InTech's inexperience and the fact that a similar program was already under way in North Carolina, gently turned Mrs. Brislin away despite her friendship with the mighty Flood.

But the inventive Mrs. Brislin had more ideas to sell the government.

On her next proposal, Flood made a personal telephone call to the Office of Education, although he says he cannot remember whom he called. In addition, Steve Elko, financial adviser to Flood as well as InTech's business manager, went busily to work in Washington.

Elko had Hegarty set up more appointments for InTech at the Office of Education (OE) and on one occasion Hegarty actually accompanied Elko to a contract meeting at OE. His presence made clear the appropriation chairman's interest in Mrs. Brislin's fledgling company.

This time, the money began to flow. In quick succession, InTech got three contracts totaling more than $500,000. One, for the preparation of computer teaching booklets, was stuffed down contract officials' throats over their protests.

MESSAGE GETS THROUGH

OE contract officials complained bitterly that InTech simply did not have the educational know-how to produce useful teaching data on computers.

Nevertheless, the Commissioner's office, by now fully aware of Flood's interest, overruled its own experts and ordered the $233,299 contract into effect. Late last year, growing concern over the contract led to appointment of a blue-ribbon committee to evaluate it.

The six-man group even journeyed to Wilkes-Barre in January for a personal look.

This column now has copies of their highly confidential reports. Even the kindest member, Dr. Glenn Ingram of the National Science Foundation, said that, after the project ended, "I would not recommend continued support."

OE's own Dr. Lawrence P. Grayson said, "At the present time InTech is incapable of carrying out a sound educational project." Dr. Augustin Root of Syracuse University said, "The project as currently being conducted should be stopped."

Others said the project was muddled, wasteful, unoriginal and limited. One panel member, Dr. Donald L. Bitzer of the University of Illinois, urged an "immediate" phaseout.

OE's response was to cut $75,000 out of the contract and ask for a brief report on the project. OE then prepared secretly to write off the hundreds of thousands of dollars already invested.

InTech's business manager, Elko, meanwhile, has moved from InTech into Flood's office as administrative assistant.

Mrs. Brislin remains undaunted. She considers the committee's evaluation report unfair and eloquently defends her young firm. "We are very proud. We know we did a good job," she says.

Flood, reached in Wilkes-Barre where he has been overwhelmingly reelected, insisted his arm-twisting for InTech was purely routine. "I've made the same sort of calls for hundreds of constituents," he commented.

GM IN POLITICS

The head of a giant General Motors plant in California used GM stationery to wage a virulent political campaign against a judge who ruled in favor of integration. When GM in Detroit found out about it, the company apologized to the judge and scolded the plant manager.

But, just as GM dilly-dallies on some of its auto goofs, so it made no effort to recall the damaging letters mailed out against Judge Alfred Gitelson by the GM plant at Van Nuys. And when the ballots were counted, Gitelson had lost.

The plant manager is A. B. Anderson, who co-signed his letter on GM letterhead with Dr. C. F. Miller Jr., the plant doctor. They sent it to almost 1,000 of the plant's 3,500 employees, Van Nuys businessmen and Anderson's personal friends.

"Do you realize that Judge Gitelson's integration order requiring massive forced bussing could not have been made by the President, the Governor or the Joint Chiefs of Staff," wrote Anderson. "The (election) outcome will not only reflect the views of the voters on forced bussing, but also on judges who legislate from the bench."

Anderson urged a vote for Gitelson's opponent, William Kennedy, and said, "Would you ask just three of your friends to do the same?"

When General Motors, which has spent millions of dollars on campaigns to sell cars to Negroes, heard of the letter, Vice President Louis Bridenstine in Detroit wrote Judge Gitelson disavowing the attack.

Bridenstine said the GM official and the GM doctor "were advised of their inpropriety," but a GM spokesman acknowledged that no effort was made to contact recipients of their letter.

Most Frequent Ghetto Demand

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN

Associated Press Writer
Better police protection is the most frequent demand of ghetto residents seeking improved city services around the nation.

Complaints that ghettos are shortchanged in the basic services simply supplied to white neighborhoods are long standing but they have reached a new level in 17 cities recently surveyed by Associated Press member newspapers.

In cities that distribute services evenly over a geographical area and in cities that recently shifted more service to areas where the most people live, the residents of ghettos are saying their services still are not equal to their needs.

They want enough additional service to make their streets as safe and clean as those in white neighborhoods.

The survey shows that demands for distribution of services according to need now overshadow lingering complaints of outright racial discrimination.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Long Hair? Don't Bristle

I AM constantly amazed by the anger and hostility that some families display when a teenager dresses "wildly" or wears his hair long.

Many families who come to my office are so fixed on the hair situation that they lose all awareness of the basic emotional needs of their children.

I usually am able to establish an immediate relationship with adolescents by treating them with total respect and by avoiding the merest mention of their Youth is being gradually liberated from many of the shackles that have bound us to our own neuroticism. Physicians, sociologists and psychiatrists believe that a greater understanding between parents and their children can control the growth of extremism and rebellion in our young people today.

Although he may have the body of an adult, the adolescent still has the unresolved emotions of youth. During this phase of growth, where the two overlap, humor can play an important role in mutual understanding. Anger and laughter rarely accompany each other. When anger flourishes in a relationship between parents and children, the rift between them becomes greater.

It takes a great deal of effort, but it is worth it, to seek a child's real sensitivity, hidden by the facade of long hair.

Adolescents and young adults can be taught that there are many rewards in solid citizenry and in the proper channeling of their energies.

To complain about the length of their hair seems to me to be the wrong start towards this understanding.

Public Needs To Learn About Economics

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

The recent election seemed to show a developing maturity on what they call the social issue. That is to say, a recognition of the necessity for social stability, in the absence of which nothing good can happen in a free society. The voters' ambivalence — there were Republican successes here, Democratic successes there — suggests two things.

One of them is that Democrats are also able to read Scammon's book on the real majority, and adjust their rhetoric accordingly. (There were very few dissenting Democratic votes on the Omnibus Crime Bill.) The second is that the voting public needs to learn a great deal about elementary economics. Because one cannot doubt that it was the economic question that figured decisively in many areas.

It is generally supposed that the economy will be the first order of business for the Nixon Administration as the count-down begins to the presidential election. What needs most to be done is not funny-money, economic razzle-dazzle, but public education. And the sooner the better, because if you wait too long, you are going to be explaining things against a demagogic background that makes education impossible.

For instance, the other night an antagonistic member of an audience rose to inform me that after all, Richard Nixon had induced unemployment. Said I: Why? There was a pause, and silence, almost as if it had been scripted. Indeed, why should Richard Nixon, President of the United States, desire unemployment?

Well — and of course it is obvious he doesn't desire unemployment. If it had been a trained economist of the Keynesian school who was there, he'd have replied to my counter-question: "Because Nixon adopts old-fashioned remedies for curbing inflation." Counter-question: "What are newfangled remedies for curbing inflation?" To which the only appropriate answer is: a totalitarian economy. In fact, there is nothing in between.

It cannot be said too often that deficit spending has certain consequences, and that those consequences are disagreeable for some people. Not, obviously, for others. If the government were to go into debt in order to greatly increase welfare benefits, or in order to make a dozen more moon landings, there would be immediate beneficiaries: those who received the welfare, and those who manufactured, both owners and workers, the parts necessary to the moon flights.

But others would pay. First with inflation, which means simply that everyone's salary is docked — currently, at about the rate of six per cent per year. Secondly, by unemployment, as the effects of inflation reduce real demand. Mr. Johnson managed to spend fifty billion dollars more than he raised through taxation. Mr. Nixon was given the job of straightening out the mess. Mr. Nixon needs to give the voters a demonstration like King Canute's. How?

And how to cope with some of the by-products of the problem? There is a lachrymose journalist here in New York whose profession is to weep over the indignities visited by American capitalists on American working men. The most recent affront he fingered is the law (there are variations of it in various states) that says that men on strike are not entitled to welfare until after the seventh week. After the seventh week? Why at all? What forces, just to give an example, ought to bring pressure to end the strike at General Motors, which boasted the unemployment figures by almost one-half million? These are men and women who could go back to work tomorrow for incomes that would appear gaudy to a Frenchman or even a West German. I do not say that their demands are unjustified — I simply do not know. But I do say that the notion of giving welfare to strikers is an economic and sentimental lunacy which, to the extent that it goes unproved, encourages the economic ignorance which is the best friend of Democratic demagogues.

And finally, a word — the same old word — about minimum wage laws. It is getting to be like social security. You can't oppose Social Security, even in order to propose a better form of social security.

And finally, a word — the same old word — about minimum wage laws. It is getting to be like social security.

You can't oppose Social Security, even in order to propose a better form of social security. And you can't oppose minimum wage laws, even in order to increase economic benefits for the poor. Too bad. So the only thing is to keep them low enough so that they don't really make any difference. Well, on with it, Mr. Nixon. Fortunately, there are a couple of years to go, and although the road will be strewn with corpses left over from the last Democratic debacle, we ought to be headed towards an improved economic situation.

Up And Up

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — West Coast longshoremen said today they will seek a shorter contract of "not more than two years" with $1 an hour pay hikes each year in upcoming negotiations with the Pacific Maritime Association.

The International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union's current contract covering 12,500 longshoremen and 1,900 shipping clerks expires June 30, 1971.

In addition to the pay hike, the will ask:

—A "work opportunity guarantee" with the employer providing either money or a full week's work for all registered men.

—A reduction of the work shift from the current six hours at straight time pay and two hours overtime to seven hours.

—An increase in monthly pension from $235 to $500 for those retiring after 25 years' service regardless of age and an annual cost-of-living review.

—The addition of Hawaiian longshoremen and clerks in the PMA contract.

—Improved medical and dental care for men and their wives.

—Ten paid holidays a year instead of the present arrangement of no paid holidays but overtime pay for holiday work.

Trouble For The Big Airlines

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

Some of the major airlines are seeking permission to reduce the number of flights. Others are laying off scores of workers. And the once enthusiastic parade of passengers seems to be marking time.

Charges of unfair government regulation and unfair marketplace competition are widespread. Fears are expressed loudly about a crisis in financing modern equipment. And some of the major lines might be in the red for the year.

Reflecting the problems, and compounding some of them, prices of airlines stocks have dropped more sharply than the Dow Jones Industrial Average.

The financial situation, as portrayed by the Air Transport Association, an industry group, is hair-raising. Read it:

"In the first quarter of 1970 the scheduled airlines recorded their largest quarterly loss in history. The 12 major airlines as a group had losses of $43 million; six of the 12 individually suffered losses; all nine regional airlines had losses totaling $36 million; and all three cargo airlines had losses totaling $11 million."

Was this a one-quarter fluke?

The ATA says no. "Preliminary data for the first six months of 1970 indicated an industry loss of $58 million, the worst half-year results in history." Scheduled airlines will show a loss for the year, it said.

If the recent history of the airlines were portrayed on a line graph, it would resemble very much the smokey wake left by an ascending jet — which then plunged unexpectedly into a turbulent air pocket.

Through the mid-1960s the industry enjoyed tremendous growth and good profits, buoyed by a vigorous economy and a general feeling among consumers that times were good — for good.

But as economic controls began slowing economic activity, the airlines were affected more than most industries.

Passenger growth, for example, averaged 17 per cent a year from 1963 to 1968, the ATA states. But now it forecasts a drop to only 2 per cent for domestic operations by the end of the year.

Freight traffic, measured by the same group, grew an average of 25 per cent a year between 1963 and 1968, but that growth is now forecast to be as low as 6 per cent by the end of 1970.

Fighting to overcome the downturn, many airlines competed by offering discount and promotional fares, which seemingly only lowered still more their yield per passenger mile from 6.24 cents in 1962 to 5.34 cents in 1968.

Airport and airway delays, the ATA says, have added many millions of dollars to expenses. And if forecasts come true, the average airport charge for landing one aircraft will be 15 per cent higher this year than last.

Meanwhile, time marches on. Because of advances in technology, the industry is constantly in a race to remain modern. Each year more than $2 billion of equipment must be financed, sometimes at interest rates as high as 11 per cent.

This sad tale is of course designed to support the airlines' contention that they need rate increases. But it suggests also that airlines may be as sick as railroads.

He's Ready For Gate Crashers

MINNEAPOLIS, St. Paul (AP) — Feverish Minnesota Vikings football fans have a problem.

How do you watch the National Football League powerhouse play when the 47,900-seat Metropolitan Stadium is sold out for every home game?

So if you don't have a ticket for next Sunday's game against the Detroit Lions, you can get out of the 75-mile blackout radius and watch the game on television.

Or you haggle with the scalpers.

Or you sneak in. But Bob Sims, who owns the ushering franchise at the stadium, is ready if you're going to try to crash the gate.

Sims has you classified into groups — the scalpers, the chargers, the namedroppers and the bribers.

"We have 43 turnstiles," Sims said, "And that's the only legal way to get in. But there must be 50,000 ways people try to get into the stadium."

The scalpers.

"The most simple way is climbing the fence," Sims said. "They kind of go at it like an attack at Fort Apache. They even use the same methods — rickety ladders, barrels."

"Some guy even drove a fork lift on the property and was lifting people over the fence. He didn't charge anything. I guess he was just being neighborly. Last year they had the snow pushed up so high behind the scoreboard that a 4-year-old could have stepped into the place."

"Relatively few actually get in, maybe 50 or 75 a game. But at night the figure triples."

Notre Dame Edges Past Texas In Poll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN Associated Press Sports Writer Notre Dame completed its rise to the top of The Associated Press college football poll today, edging past Texas' defending national champions who in turn ousted Ohio State three weeks ago.

Thanks to a 46-14 rout of Pittsburgh while Texas was having its troubles beating lowly Baylor 21-14, the Fighting Irish pulled down 23 of 46 first-place votes cast by sports writers and broadcasters across the country and 822 points.

Texas received 13 first-place votes and 783 points. Ohio State, Nebraska and Michigan held onto the 3-4-5 spots with 728, 638 and 607 points, respectively. Each received three first-place votes, with the remaining one going to 11th-ranked Arizona State.

Last weekend, Ohio State defeated Wisconsin 24-7, Nebraska clobbered Iowa State 54-29 and Michigan buried Illinois 42-0.

Peking Expected To Lose Again At U.N.

By TOM HOGE
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Peking has several new backers, but it is expected to lose again this year in the contest for the China seat in the United Nations.

The seat has been held 25 years by the Nationalist Chinese, who retain only the Formosa area but profess to speak for all China. As one of the big-power founders of the United Nations, China has the power of veto in the Security Council.

This year's debate on the question starts Thursday. A General Assembly vote is expected about a week later.

Red China is still plainly short on the two-thirds majority needed to unseat Nationalist China. It is sure, however, to fare better than in 1969 when the Communists emerged on the short end of a 48-56 vote amid 21 abstentions.

Diplomatic recognition by Canada, Italy and Equatorial Guinea gives Peking three votes from members who abstained last year. Malaysia, which abstained in 1969, may go for Peking this year, according to statements coming out of Kuala Lumpur.

Chile, under a Marxist president, has not indicated whether it will shift its position. Last year it abstained.

There is some doubt about Peru and Bolivia, which have experienced leftward political swings. Both voted against Peking in 1969.

Cambodia supported Red China until the Communists threw its mission out of Peking last spring after the ouster of Prince Norodom Sihanouk. This time Cambodia is expected to vote against Red China, or abstain.

A Nationalist spokesman says:

"We are confident that we will counterbalance any votes we lose with others in our favor."

Some Americans familiar with the China issue believe Peking may soon win a majority, and one view is that this will turn the tide in the next year or two.

FLAG ETIQUETTE

Strict flag etiquette provides that the only occasion the Stars and Stripes legally can be burned, is when the flag is tattered and worn-out. In that case, the flags are supposed to be taken apart, the blue field and stripes burned separately and the ashes then buried.

Key Rail Union Official Spurns White House Board Pay Proposal

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A key union official has spurned a White House board's recommendation for the largest wage settlement in railroad history — a 36 per cent pay increase over three years for more than 500,000 workers.

"It's not enough," said C. L. Dennis, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks, after the recommendation was made public Monday. The panel called for boosting the average wage of the workers from the current $3.68 hourly level to $5.00 over the life of the contract.

Dennis, however, said the recommendations of the five-member board, appointed by President Nixon to head off a threatened nationwide rail strike, could serve as the basis for further talks.

"It could be the basis for real hard, gut negotiations," said Dennis, whose union is the largest of the four AFL-CIO organizations in the wage dispute, representing about 75 per cent of all rail workers.

Under the Railway Labor Act, strikes or lockouts are prohibited for 30 days after the board's report. The earliest the unions could strike is 12:01 a.m. Dec. 10.

The other unions involved represent trainmen, track maintenance employees and dining car workers.

The board, headed by private arbitrator Lewis M. Gill of Merion, Pa., recommended a 5 per cent wage hike retroactive to last Jan. 1, another 32 cents or 8.5 per cent retroactive to Nov. 1, 1970, another 4 per cent April 1, 1971, and three additional 5 per cent boosts effective Oct. 1, 1971, April 1, 1972, and Oct. 1, 1972.

The compounded total of 36 per cent compares with the unions' demands of 40 per cent and the railroad industry's last offer totaling 13 per cent.

"They're short on money," said Dennis of the board's recommendations, even though conceding it was the biggest wage offer in rail history.

"In view of runaway inflation, that's the reason why they have to put more on the table," he said.

But the board recommended against union demands for increased vacations, holidays and for cost-of-living pay.

The board also urged negotiations on a number of industry demands for rules that would eventually reduce the work force — usually a very difficult area of discussion.

Dennis said he had a meeting scheduled with chief rail industry negotiator John P. Hiltz for 10 a.m. Thursday to discuss the recommendations.

Annual Turkey Feast Set Next Sunday At El Camino Church

The annual public turkey dinner for the El Camino Methodist Church has been set for next Saturday evening, November 14, 5:30 to 8 o'clock in the Gerber Elementary School cafeteria.

Mrs. Raymond Alderson will head the kitchen committee and will be assisted by Mrs. Thad Blanchard, Jr., posters, Mrs. Gary Taylor, table decorations, Mrs. Beryl Hogan, pies, and Mrs. Dale Borror, publicity.

Members of the high school church school class will serve the tables.

A table of baked goods and bazaar items will be for sale with Mrs. Ludwig Witte in charge.

Price of the dinner will be $1.75 for adults and 75 cents for children under 12 years of age. Hugh Bunnell will be the cashier.

Inservice Director To Visit Corning And St. Elizabeth Today

Mrs. Dorothy Kincaide, the inservice director at the Enloe Hospital, Chico, was to visit St. Elizabeth and Corning Hospitals today. She is presenting a program to the nursing service departments of both hospitals on the nursing care of patients with head injuries. A film strip is being shown and a lecture given by Mrs. Kincaide.

This program has been arranged by the inservice directors of the hospitals in the area who plan to continue to exchange worthwhile teaching materials and programs. A similar exchange of educational programs are available for the doctors in the area.

Pre-School Parents Meeting Tomorrow At Reeds Creek School

A meeting for parents of children attending Pre-School 1331, part of the Headstart program, will be held tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the old Reeds Creek schoolhouse, according to Linda Murray, chairman of the parent board.

The school, begun three years ago and originally held at the Tehama Totem Fairground, is now held at the Reeds Creek building.

The parents are also planning a bake sale with proceeds to go towards dental work for the youngsters. It will be held Saturday at Raley's Market beginning at 10 a.m.

MILE OF THREAD
The most common stocking size for women, size 10, requires about one million stitches and one mile of thread.

MORE ABOUT Rezoning

indicated he thought the council should solve the taxation and community zoning problems before starting to rezone for mobile homes piecemeal.

The proposal was referred to the planning commission. The rezoning, before it could become effective, will require two public hearings to hear arguments from Corning residents.

City Clerk Lillian Hagen told the council she has received bids to appraise city buildings for insurance purposes. The lowest bid was for $100 a day, not exceeding $600. The city is considering the building appraisals because city property has not been appraised since it acquired the new city hall and fire station. Present estimates of value are unofficial.

In other action, Councilman Weeks asked the council to authorize adding another man to the police department. He had presented the request at the last council session.

Emery objected. He said the department may well need another man, or even more than one man, but the department, he said, has not justified the cost of adding a man. He said the argument that one man alone on patrol at night is endangered is not justification enough for the additional man.

Councilman Weeks, head of the city's law enforcement commission, said the rising incidence of burglaries, drug use and theft is justification for the addition.

Emery, among other things, suggested the police justify their existence by some form of quota system to increase the revenue from fines. He also told city police chief Jerry Rowe he thinks patrolmen might do a better job by sitting in one place instead of "constantly running up and down the street." He said it would save gas.

The average salary for Corning policemen is $7,476.

Picketing Striker Fired, Ineligible For Unemployment

Improper conduct during a strike may wind up getting a picketing striker fired for misconduct connected with his work making him ineligible for unemployment insurance after the strike is over.

While on strike the claimant stood across the street and flashed sun rays into the eyes of non striking employees with a mirror as they left the plant at the end of the day. After the strike he was discharged.

During a trade-dispute the employer-employee relationship is not broken but suspended. Thus if a worker's actions during a strike constitute misconduct, his actions are considered to be in connection with his work.

His actions constituted mischievous conduct which went beyond peaceful picketing and constitutes misconduct.

MORE ABOUT Prison

Rocky Allen McDonald, a 17-year-old Los Molinos resident, entered pleas of guilty to three charges of second degree burglary. His case was referred to the probation department for investigation and recommendations, and sentencing has been set for Nov. 23, at 1:45 p.m.

McDonald had been charged with burglarizing the homes of James Anthony Mangold, Etta May Kyler, and Frank A. Smith, all of Los Molinos. All three burglaries occurred in August.

Harold Lucas was appointed by the court to represent McDonald.

Four years probation was granted Ronald Lee Coates, 18, Red Bluff. Provisions of his probation included 60 days in the county jail, and that he refrain from using alcoholic beverages and dangerous drugs and make restitution.

Coates had earlier pleaded guilty to charges of entering motor vehicles at two Antelope area automobile sales lots.

PLAYING IT DOWN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials are playing down the movement of two Soviet ships toward the Cuban port where the United States recently charged the Russians were building a submarine base.

MARKETS Nearby City Concert Will Take Local Pass

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices drifted higher today, resisting apparent profit taking on gains prompted by optimism Monday for an early settlement of the General Motors strike.

At 2 p.m. the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 0.06 at 777.42.

Some brokers had warned that profit taking could set in in the absence of tangible positive news that talks between GM and the United Auto Workers Union were nearing agreement.

Motor stocks were down, with American Motors off 1/4 to 6 1/4, Chrysler down 1/4 to 26 1/2, Ford off 1/2 at 51, and General Motors down 1/4 to 73 3/4.

Among the large blocks of 10,000 or more shares crossing the Big Board Ticker tape were 498,600 shares of Minnesota Mining at 86 1/4, down 4 1/4, and 104,900 shares of Kinney National at 25, off 3.

The market made clear-cut gains Monday in the wake of reports that GM and the United Auto Workers Union had begun intensive negotiations in an effort to reach agreement on Wednesday on national issues in the strike.

These reports could not be officially confirmed, however, because of the news blackout at the negotiations.

Among the large blocks of 10,000 or more shares traded was a 103,600-share parcel of American Standard at 27 1/2, down 1 1/4.

U.S. Firms To Publish Book By Khrushchev

NEW YORK (AP) — Life magazine and Little Brown and Co., jointly announced today that they will publish the reminiscences of former Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

A spokesman for Time, Inc., gave no indication of how the 275,000-word manuscript was obtained but said both Life and Little Brown are convinced of its authenticity "without any doubt" and have "taken pains to confirm that this is an authentic record of Nikita Khrushchev's words."

They laughed when I sat down to read the phone book.

They didn't know that the front pages of the telephone book contain lots of useful information that can help you get more from your telephone service. Things like Area Codes, emergency numbers, how to dial long distance calls, and lots more information. Now my friends aren't laughing any more. They're too busy reading.
